M: Let's talk about the newsletter.

W: OK, let's check what we've got so far. We've decided to have one main story and one short story, right?

M: Right. And what about pictures? Should we have one for each story?

W: I'm not so sure about that. Maybe it would be too much. How about just for the main story?

M: That sounds good. Now, what will our stories be? We could do one about the students who visited from Hawaii. Maybe we could use one of the photos they sent us.

Questions No. 20 to 22

Now let me tell you a story. When we lived in Japan many years ago, my American friend Jane came to visit us with her Japanese boss, who wanted to meet my husband. After he left, we decided to open the gift that he had brought. Surprisingly, it was a neatly packed live lobster. I started laughing and shouting, "It's alive! It's alive!" But Jane, who'd just gone to the bathroom, thought I was yelling, "It's a lie! It's a lie!" She thought we were having an argument, so she was afraid to come back into the living room. When she finally returned, she realized that we were not fighting, but laughing at such an unexpected gift.

We had never cooked a lobster before, so we didn't know what to do. In those days there was no Internet to get information, so we went and asked a neighbor. Meanwhile, we had put the lobster in a sink full of water. When we came home the lobster had become so lively that we no longer had the heart to cook it. We managed to get it back into the box, and we gave it to the neighbor instead.

これで第4問Aは終わりです。次の問題に進みます。

Questions No. 23 to 25

Ichiro: So, Reina, what would you do if we had five million yen to improve our school?

Reina: Hmm. I can think of so many things, Ichiro. One idea would be to put a roof over the bicycle parking area. Don't you hate it when it rains and your bike gets wet? We could also put some picnic tables on the grassy area over by the bike stands. That would give students a place to have lunch or hang out after school. And we could make the entrance look a lot nicer. What about painting it a bright color and buying some plants and flowers?

Ichiro: Well, those are all great ideas, Reina. I especially like putting a roof over the bicycles. But to tell the truth, if we had that much money to spend, I think it'd be better to spend it on one big thing rather than a lot of little things.

Reina: Oh, yeah. Good point, Ichiro.

Ichiro: I think it'd be better if we had free Wi-Fi everywhere in the school. Internet access would help us study more. We could get a lot of information that would help us with our homework, and there are so many educational websites that are usually free. Best of all, we could chat with the students at our sister school in Australia. Don't you agree, Mayuko?

Mayuko: Well, that's a pretty good idea, Ichiro, but the library has Internet access, and most students already have smartphones or tablet PCs. I think it'd be better to buy solar panels instead. That electricity could be used all over the school—we could have hot water in the winter and air conditioning in the summer. Oh, I know! We could make a roof for the bicycles out of the solar panels. That would kill two birds with one stone!
